ARLINGTON HEADS STATE IN FARM LANDS

The Average Value of Land Per Acre Is $336.38

HOW COUNTIES STAND

Among the 16,040 Citizens of That County But 54 Are Classified as Farmers.

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 23.—Arlington, youngest and smallest of Virginia's 100 counties, has the most valuable farm land in the commonwealth, according to a bulletin issued by the Bureau of the Census. The average value of such land in the county is given at $336.38 an acre. However, among the 16,040 citizens of Arlington, but 54 are classified as farmers. The rapidity with which Washington on one side and Alexandria on the other have encroached on the farming area is illustrated in the official figures, showing that within the present limits of Arlington the acreage in farm lands has shrunk from 11,561 in 1900 to 2,773 in 1920. Building lots have gained 9,000 acres in the 20 years.

No other county farm land in the state compares with that of Arlington in value as officially assessed. The nearest rival is Northampton, one of the most venerable of the counties, between Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic, with 59 per cent. colored population, home of trucking and oyster industries. Farm land valuation there is $159.16. Norfolk county farm land, despite the proximity of Norfolk and Portsmouth is but $107.16, and in Henrico, largest suburb of the city of Richmond and home of many of the business men there, it is $95.06.

Among the strictly agricultural counties, not adjoining nor practically part of an urban community with more than 5,000 population, the ten leaders in value of farm lands, excepting Northampton, are:

Accomac	$107.52
Pulaski	84.72
Clarke	75.34
Wythe	68.18
Shenandoah	65.54
Washington	62.57
Fairfax	61.39
Mathews	60.58
Loudoun	59.26
Smyth	59.15

Fauquier lands average but $45.08 in valuation, but in total value of all farm property she is third in the state, with nearly $30,000,000, led by Augusta, with over $49,000,000, and Loudoun, with $32,000,000.

The lowest valuation of land in the state is in Appomattox, scene of General Lee's surrender, $14.70 per acre.

Among the cities, two farmers within the limits of Alexandria, presumably farm on farm-land valued, officially, at nearly $1,200 an acre. Their combined holdings, however, are but 65 acres. At Newport News two citizens, one male and one female, elect to farm three acres each on land valued at $5,400 per acre.

The bulletin gives suggestive figures of farm values in the state for each decade since 1850. These show that in 1920 there were in the state over 186,000 farms, compared with 77.000 in 1850, and that the value of farm property is $196,000,000, compared with $250,000,000 in 1850 and less than $500,000,000 in 1860. The value of farm property in the state in 1870, five years after the close of the civil war, was $232,000,000 less than in 1860, not including the loss in slave property. But the average acre per farm now is not quite 100, while seventy years ago it was 336, and the average value per acre is $64.47, an increase of more than 650 per cent. since the days before the war.

Evidence that the negro has thriven along with his white neighbors on the farm is given by the figures showing practically one-third of the farms of the state, owned by negroes, there being 30,949 colored and 106,414 white owners, and that the farm property owned by colored people is over $110,000,000, a gain of 450 per cent. since 1900. The increase of farm values for the white farmers in the same twenty years has been about 400 per cent. Farm property now owned by negroes in Virginia is two-fifths as much as the total farm values of the state in 1850.

Of the 136,000 farms operated by owners, 98.000 were free of mortgage in 1920 and 13,500 made no report on mortgage.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Washington Nov. 23.—Eugene V. Debs, now serving a ten years' sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary for violation of the war measures of the government will have to give thanks this year behind prison walls if he feels so disposed. There is to be no Thanksgiving pardon for him. Announcement to this effect has been made at the White House. Despite the many communications and petitions that have reached the White House and Department of Justice asking for the release of Debs and other political prisoners, the Chief Executive has not as yet made up his mind about the action he will take in any of the cases.

He is giving very careful attention to all the facts bearing upon each case and when he does reach a final decision he will deal with each individual separately and not great general amnesty to all the prisoners now confined in federal institutions

"Let the American flag remain on the Rhine. It works for the moral disarmament of Germany."

This is the declaration made today by M. Briand, the French Premier. "The American flag on the Rhine fights as powerfully for moral disarmament in Germany as the American troops, fought during the war to bring about Germany's military surrender. It is not the size of the American force that counts. It is the flag."

A good deal of criticism has been heard in Washington as the result of the placing of sentries-marines armed with muskets and bayonets—in front of the navy building and also in front of the Pan-American Union where the various bodies forming part of the conference on the limitation of armaments are holding daily sessions. Someone suggested that they had no authority there as the city of Washington is not under martial law. But, authority or no authority, the marines are there in great numbers and if you don't show your offical pass every step or two you are likely to get into trouble. Incidentally, some high officers of the marine corps have run up against the bayonets and muskets of the private marines. The former have endeavored to get by without the necessary credentials but in each instance they have been turnd back and told to go to headquarters to get their passes. The marines on duty are no respectors of persons or of rank and the officers of the corps know this.

Close examination of the four general principles tentatively selected at the suggestion of Elihu Root to govern the arms conference in its consideration of the Chinese question reveals that in agreeing to them, no nation has made any concessions whatever and that China has not been helped in the least by the declaration of principles.

The four Root points are declared by experts on Far Eastern affairs to be nothing but affirmation in a general way of principles that have always of recent years governed the conference nations in their individual contact with China. The only new thing about them is that they are now made collective instead of being individual agreements of the eight governments with China.

Three subjects on the Hughes agenda for the conference on limitation of armaments and Pacific and Far Eastern questions have not yet even been taken up informally by the conference. They are:

1. Questions relating to new agencies of warfare, poison gas, liquid fire, submarines, etc.
2. Questions relating to Siberia.
3. Questions relating to electrical communication in the Pacific.

It is understood that the problem of electrical communication has been settled by the United States and Japan outside the conference and will not be brought up there.

Chinese of Canton origin in the United States are rallying to the support of the policies of the Chinese delegates to the conference on limitation of armaments. The Chinese delegation in the conference represents the Pekin government, which is opposed by the Canton or South China faction. Many Canton Chinese have written the delegation expressing approval of its work thus far.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The November meeting of the League of Women Voters was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms last night, with the newly elected president, Mrs. William J. Morton, in the chair. In the absence of the secretary, Miss Florence Evans, acted as secretary pro tem.

Routine business was transacted, after which Miss Ada Garrett was elected second vice president. The question of a membership drive was discussed, and each member was urged to secure new members, bringing all the women voters in the city into the league and thereby giving the women more power in the forthcoming election for councilmen. A meeting will be held in the near future to discuss the schools of the city and their needs and it is hoped to have a speaker present well versed in the subject.

The next meeting will be held on December 14, the board of governors to meet at 7:30 p. m., and the regular meeting to follow at 8 o'clock.

GOAL SET FOR Y. M. C. A. DRIVE IS $75,000

Action Taken by Board of Directors Last Night

TOTAL COST $100,000

Plan Active Drive For Funds Early Next Spring—State Secretary Lee In Charge of Campaign.

The board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association at their meeting at the Chamber of Commerce last evening decided to raise their objective to $75,000. This was advised by State Secretary Lee after a careful survey of the field and consultation with a number of those interested in the work. The increase in the amount was unanimously adopted by the splendid representation of the board present.

Preparations for the campaign will begin at once but the active drive will be some time early in the spring of 1922. Those attending the board meeting heartily approved the increase in the objective and the action by the board was unanimous. Several talks made by the different members of the board expressed the sentiment that they were in favor of a building and equipment thoroughly worth while and worthy of the city of Alexandria.

Details of the building and building site will be worked out by a committee of the city's best spirited men and men who will be thoroughly unselfish in their desire to serve the city in a permanent way. It is thought that the property entirely will probably cost close to $100,000 as it was the sense of the board that the city would doubtless demand such an equipment for the community's needs.

Mr. Lee, the state secretary, will be in active charge of the campaign and promised the board last night unlimited time and attention. The local secretary will carry on the usual program of activities of the association and the campaign will in no way interfere with this. Indeed it is announced that many additions are to be made to the already extensive program which includes community work of a very comprehensive nature.

10 KILLED; 30 WOUNDED IN RIOT AT BELFAST

Belfast, Nov. 24.—Two bombs were exploded in a tramcar full of shipyard workers here this afternoon killing three of the occupants and injuring 18 others.

Shortly after the attack two more bombs were thrown among a crowd watching a fire and 12 additional persons were injured.

The deaths of the three persons inside the train car were due to gas fumes. The total number of deaths during the disorders of yesterday and today is 10.

The attack on the tram car took place in Corporation street. The shipyard workers in the car were returning home from their day's work. With the cessation of work at the big shipyards and warehouses at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon firing became fierce in the Ballymaccarett district. Lorry loads of police and military were rushed to the scene to protect the workers, whose movements they blanketed. They were successful in their maneuvers until the tram car was bombed.

The bombs were thrown from among a crowd of men. The car was packed, even the steps being loaded with passengers. The force of the explosion blew out a portion of the side of the car.

A scene of indescribable confusion followed. The men who threw the missile fled and the uninjured work men on the car ran away, panic-stricken, without waiting to help their wounded comrades whose cries were audible from inside the car.

Finally when the confusion had ceased somewhat the injured and dead were taken from the debris and laid on the footpath alongside the tramway line. There the injured were cared for by ambulance surgeons, who hastened to the scene, while large bodies of police cordoned the vicinity.

Tramway service was entirely suspended in the district around the York street thread mills, the biggest concern of its kind in the city. The mill closed its doors today an hour before the usual time. The girl operatives left the factory by a hole made in the wall in a side street on the occasion of the last rioting in the district.

There was shooting during the day near the Labor Exchange, where one of the clerks was killed outright and another man was so badly wounded that he died later. The remainder of the staff of the exchange fled in panic.

PAY INCREASE FOR R. R. MEN TO BE ASKED

400,000 Shop Workers To Demand Raise Over 1920 Scale

COUNTER OFFENSIVE

Is Thought This Move Is Intended to Forestall Any Proposed Reduction

New York, Nov. 24.—Officials of approximately 400,000 organized and actively empolyed shop workers have notified the managers of practically all the railroads in the country of their intention to ask for an increase in wages amounting to 5 cents an hour over the levels prevailing under the decision of the United States Railroad Labor Board handed down July 20, 1920.

The nature of the notification came in the form of a letter, which stated that upon the expiration of 30 days' notice the roads were requested to enter conferences with duly authorized representatives of the shop crafts and discuss with them the question of a wage increase.

This coming in the face of notices sent out by the managers of all lines announcing conferences on the matter of a wage reduction, was taken in local operating circles to mean a concerted drive on the part of the shop workers to secure through their counter-offensive a bargain which would leave them with their pay unchanged.

Railroad officials greeted the announcement of the drive for an increase in wages with satsfaction. The principal reason for the optimism shown by executives was said to be the knowledge that the surplus workers in all industries would tend to defeat the action of the shop crafts.

The simple request for a conference on December 20, sent out Saturday, was followed by another notice yesterday, which stated that if a conference was granted the shop crafts would ask for 5 cents an hour above the rates established by the United States Railroad Labor Board in its decision of July 20, 1920.

Statistics available here today indicated that the scale of pay for five of the six federated shop crafts prior to the decision referred to, was 72 cents an hour. This was increased by that ruling to 85 cents an hour for machinists, boilermakers, blacksmiths, electricians and sheet metal workers, and reduced to 77 cents by the decision of last July. What the men are prepared to demand is an hourly rate of pay for 90 cents.

The only exception to these figures was in the case of car repair workers, who, prior to the first increase, received 67 cents an hour. Their pay was raised to 80 cents and then cut to 72 cents. The new demands will call for a rate of 85 cents an hour.

DONATION DAY

Alexandria Hospital and Home For Aged Appeal to Your Generosity

Tomorrow will be donation day at the Alexandria Hospital and at the Anne Lee Memorial Home for the Aged. This is an established custom at these institutions and representatives of both places will be on hand tomorrow for the purpose of receiving donations and trust that the citizens may be generous this Thanksgiving.

Off For Charlottesville

The entire student body of Alexandria High School, consisting of more than three hundred students, was at Union Station to send its team off with a cheer. When the train left this morning for Charlottesville it bore a team of which its school is proud and when it returns tonight at about eleven o'clock it will be met by the same enthusiastic assemblage as saw it depart. Today the High School boys are playing for eastern championship of the State against the strong team of Charlottesville High, Tomorrow morning at 10.30 oclock the same High School team will play the team of St. John's College of Washington on Baggetts field. Returns from the Charlottesville game will be displayed in the window of R. E. night and Son's Store on King Street.

Bible Thought for Today

THANKSGIVING DAY A SONG OF THANKSGIVING:—Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men! O come let us sing unto the Lord; let us come before his presence with thanksgiving. For he is our God, and we are the people of his pasture.—Psalm 107: 25; 95: 1, 2, 7.

ASK FOR SIX MORE ON THE POLICE FORCE

Police Commissioners Present Petition to City Council

WANT NEW PISTOLS

Defer Election Fire Chief—Chief McDermott Indorsed For Re-Election—Other Matters Acted Upon.

Six additional policemen were asked for by the board of police commissioners in a communication presented to city council last night, they to serve for night duty from now till April 1. This would bring the force up to twenty-four members. In their communication to the city council it was set forth that the present number of police officers on active duty is insufficient to insure the safety of its citizens, and that a great deal of the city is practically unguarded.

The commissioners also recommended that new pistols be purchased and delivered the police setting forth that many of those in use at the present time are antiquated, and that some of them are very much out of repair. It was set forth that the city had not purchased any new ones for fifteen years.

A resolution appropriating a blank number of dollars for the purchase of the pistols accompanied the communication as did also an ordinance that the police force consist of 24 members. This was referred to the joint committee on finance and police

Fire Chief E. J. McDermott was indorsed for re-election by Relief Truck and Engine Comany No. 1. Chief McDermott submitted a letter of recent date from Albert Peters, Washington, manager of the National Insurance Company, praising the firemen for the able manner in which they handled the fire at the storage warehouse of the Mutual Ice Company. Chief McDermott also submitted to council a letter from the Mutual Ice Company thanking the firemen for the splendid work done at the fire that destroyed their ware house and on which occasion they sent a check for $100 to the local firemen and $50 to the Washington department. They also praised the work of the Firefighter. On motion these communications were received.

Councilman McCaffrey notified council that there is a vacancy on the board of police commissioners from the second ward, the term of R. E. Knight having expired. No action, however, was taken at this meeting. A number of firemen appeared thinking that possibly a joint session would be held for the purpose of electing a fire chief.

Resolution appropriating $500 to purchase a car load of granite curb was referred to the committee on streets and finance.

Bill of William Desmond for $254.05 for work done at various places for the city was referred to the joint committee on finance and public property. Permission was granted Irving Brawner to erect frame kitchen in rear of 417 North Columbus street.

CROWDED SCHOOLS

Arlington County Commerce Body Seeks $500,000 Bond Issue

Clarendon, Va., Nov. 23.—The crowded condition of the schools of Arlington county is becoming alarming. According to the last census there are 4,500 white and 1,290 colored children of school age in the county and only seventy-two teachers are employed, an average of 82 pupils for each teacher if all were in school. In addition there are 1,800 children 5 years and under for which provisions must be made in the next few years.

The school bureau of the chamber of commerce is advocating a $500,000 bond issue for new schools and additions which would include a 14-room school conveniently located for Clarendon, Ballston and Cherrydale; a new school at Aurora Heights, and the following additions: Four rooms at Clarendon, four at Ballston, three at East Falls Church, four rooms and an auditorium at Fort Myer, four at Nauck, four at Summer, four at Carne and eight rooms and auditorium at Columba Pike.

SOLOISTS FOR CONCERT

At the concert next Tuesday night, the following soloists will be heard: Mesdames Harrie White Emily Marsh, Sherman B. Fowler, Kenneth Ogden, N. Trapnell, Misses Lucy Graves and Mary Nalls, Messrs. Stephen Field, Kenneth Ogden, Wilmer Waller and Lieut. Harry Guilmette, Mr. Merrill Beagle will play the "fiddle", Mrs. Dreishler the "Melodeon" and Mr. Sherman B. Fowler the "Harpsichorde."

Tickets can be secured from members of choir and drug stores.

VIRGINIA NEWS PARAGRAPHED

Petersburg.—With a bullet from either a rifle or pistol in his head and his entire side riddled with a load of birdshot, Deputy Sheriff John Kelly, aged 27, of Dinwiddle county, tonight lies in the Petersburg Hospital in an unconscious condition and with small chances for recovery, as a result of being fired upon by a gang of negroes, alleged to be blockaders and bootleggers, late Saturday night near Carson, in Dinwiddie county, after a hunt for a whiskey still.

Petersburg.—About 200 citizens of Matoaca, Chesterfield county, have just organized a community league. I. B. Moore was elected president, Mrs. Horace Mann, vice president and W. B. Adams, treasurer.

Lynchburg.—Plans are being matured here for the organization of a Scottish Rite Masonic consistory in Lynchburg. Other consistories in the state are located at Richmond, Roanoke, Alexandria and Norfolk.

Richmond.—Dr. E. C. Levy, director of public welfare, has returned from New York, where he attended the annual convention of the American Public Health Association. He was reelected a member of the board of directors. This was the fifteenth annual meeting, and Dr. Stephen Smith, the first president, was in attendance upon the sessions. He was presented with a gold medal by the association.

Richmond.—In the case of Mrs. Grace Lillard Smith vs. the State Highway Commission, an action for compensation under the workmen's compensation act for the death of her husband, William Oscar Smith, a quarry foreman, the supreme court of appeals yesterday ruled that the commission, not being a municipal corporation nor a political division thereof, is not responsible. The state, however, the court holds, is. but no funds have been provided for the payment of compensation under the act and none are available until the general assembly makes such appropriation.

Lynchburg.—George H. Bowles, state secretary of the Virginia Farmers' Educational and Cooperative union, has returned from Topeka, Kan., where he attended the convention of the national union. He said it was the largest and best meeting the union has ever had. Other Virginians at the meeting were O. A. Thomas, of Bedford, and G. A. Lambert, Rural Retreat.

Norfolk.The Norfolk City Marketmen's association today issued a statement advising patrons of the market against paying more than 65 cents a pound for Thanksgiving turkeys, dressed and drawn, and stating emphatically that its members will not buy any turkeys that cannot be sold at retail for that price or less. The statement followed a report by Paul White and Thomas Starkey of the special committee appointed last week to make a survey of the turkey market and recommend a fair price.

Lynchburg. — Announcement has just been made here that the Craddock-Terry company has completed arrangements with the Jobber's Overall company creditor's committee, which recently bought the effects of that concern at a bankruptcy receiver's sale, for a long term lease of two of the buildings formerly occupied as an overall plant. These two buildings give this company 100,000 additional floor space and between 500 and 600 employees will be added to the company's pay roll here, increasing the number to 2,000 here.

RECENT DEATHS

Mrs. Annie L. Struder, 78 years old, died at 11 o'clock last night at the Alexandria Hospital after a long illness. She is survived by two sons, Hubert and Harvey Struder. The body was taken to Wheatley's chapel. Her funeral will take place at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon from the residence of her son, Hubert Struder, 215 Gibbon street.

Miss Mary C. Martin, 13 years old, daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Martin, died last night at the residence of her mother, 502 S. Patrick street. Her funeral will take place at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon from her late residenc and services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of the M. E. Church, South. Burial will be in Bethel cemetery.

WEEK OF PRAYER

The women of the Second Presbyterian church are holding their annual home mission week of prayer every afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Westminster building. All ladies invited. Dr. Allison, the pastor, has kindly turned over the hour of service tonight to the Woman's Auxiliary and they will have charge of it.

Mrs. William Melchoir will lead. A number of the ladies will take part and it is hoped there will be a good attendance. This meeting is for men as well as women.

FRENCH STAND ON SUBMARINES NOT PLEASING

Prospect That Clash With British May Develop Over Issue

WILL LOOK TO U. S.

Briand Claims France Is Not Seeking Parity With Japan In Capital Ships.

Washington, Nov. 23.—Prospects for a clash between the French and British delegations in connection with the naval reduction program appeared to be in process of development tonight.

Despite a denial by Premier Briand this evening of a report that France will seek a parity with Japan in the matter of dreadnaughts. British circles were scarcely less concerned over the frank admission of the French leader that his nation desires a submarine fleet for defensive purposes.

"Great battleships," M. Briand officially announced, "have no interest for France. What we need are submarines and light, fast cruisers for coast defense."

Regarding submarines, M. Briand stated that the limitation of these craft could not be finally dealt with at this session of the disarmament conference because many of the powers vitally interested in submarines are not represented here.

"The naval problem pre-eminently occupies three powers, the United States, Great Britain and Japan," he said. "France is interested in it to a lesser extent. But France cannot make promises alone and bind her hands regarding submarines unless other nations participate."

The premier intimated France fears that Germany might place secret orders for construction of submarines in the ship yards of Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Holland, and suddenly start an aggressive war on delivery of the ships.

"The question of submarines was introduced first at The Hague, when we opposed it. It came up next at the Paris peace conference, when we refused to adopt it. It was mentioned at Geneva by the league of nations, and now it has come up here," said M. Briand.

"The British, with their great high seas navy, always have opposed submarines, but powers with smaller navies and with less money to spend have fought consistently against restricting this weapon as a defensive arm."

The premier stated that the French people would not consent to see their navy and their fleet legislated out of existence at a foreign conference and recalled the 1912 construction program, which has been postponed owing to the war.

"France has no fixed project regarding her construction program nor the amount of additions to her navy," he said. "But we are in accord with Mr. Hughes' proposals and, as I said at the opening session, 'we are behind America.'"

It was intimated strongly tonight that if the French premier means that France will go before the conference demanding sanction for an ambitious submarine program of her own she will encounter opposition. Furthermore, it is stated, Great Britain in such event would look to America to support her protest.

That Great Britain would prefer to outlaw the submarine altogether already has been stated by her representatives at the Washington gathering, and among those in position to reflect the views of her delegation, it is declared, with emphasis, that the statement of Premier Briand is not calculated to make the British any less persistent in this regard.

It was pointed out that this attitude on the part of the Britishers is founded upon grim experience. It was the German submarine, not the German battleship that threatened the defeat of the allies upon the high seas. All the resourcefulness of the British, American and French naval forces was needed to strike a death blow at the German U-boats. It is the recollection of this experience which moved the British to proceed against the submarine and which will move them, it can be stated authoritatively, to resist any plan France may advance before the conference providing for the development of a submarine fleet, not 200 miles from British shores, but 21 miles away.

Thanksgiving Dance

The "Thanksgiving Dance" to be given at the Lyceum on Thursday evening by the Fourth Degree Assembly K. of C., promises to be one of the most enjoyable events of the season.

THANKSGIVING, 1921

Doubtless, Thursday, the 24th instant, will be a notable occasion for those who are given to serious thinking, now and then. What we may have to be thankful for as individuals, as families, as communities,—nay, even as a nation—shrinks to utter Nothingness—as compared to the mighty paean of thanksgiving that mankind owes its Maker during these immortal days of the Washington Conference.

For the first time in history, the peoples of the war-desolated nations of the world have sent their ambassadors and spokesmen to meet on a common level of Democracy, and bade them treat of Peace Perpetual! For what is disarmament but the first step toward the abolition of war! And whether these earnest gentlemen who are now gathered at the Nation's capital know it or not, the work they do, the words they utter, the very thoughts that float dimly in their subconsciousness,—are all directed to one sublime objective—peace on earth and universal good will under one and only Fatherhood.

Like all things human this conference will dissolve and melt away. It may adjourn with little or no definite action taken on disarmament. It may yet be the scene of bitter wrangling and stern dispute. But it has sown the most glorious seed in the illimitable fields of Time that has ever sprung from the human brain.

America has spoken; England has replied; France has uttered her eloquent plea to her sisters. Italy and Japan have caught the ineffable spirit of the occasion and risen to the sublime heights of altruism. The essential covenants have been arrived at in the open—and the world has heard.

It is the occasion, then, for a World Thanksgiving—this tomorrow of all tomorrows! We shall probably not be alive to see its full splendor—but it is already the dawn of the day when all the armies and navies of the world will be for police purposes only.

History never repeats itself—but moves like the mighty tides of the ocean—each wave creeps up a little higher on the sands. But history may well be learned by analogies. For instance, take the individual; how comparatively recent it was that personal disputes were settled only by the sword or the pistol. Or the component parts of the nation itself: such a measure as resorting to the courts of the land was undreamed of—even held as cowardly and unworthy of men. But now dueling is regarded as barbarous, and civil war as preposterous. Thus will the international codes and practices resolve themselves in the newer and better day. A few centuries hence and they will wonder at the barbarity of their ancestors, who murdered each other and perpetrated the most horrible cruelties of war, to settle matters capable of arbitration, or of submission to an international court.

It is for the first step in this direction that is now being taken by the world—that we have to be thankful this Thanksgiving.

First steps are always feeble, groping, and uncertain. But they are steps, and gain in strength with each new advance. Those who believe in an Almighty God, whose children are even as the sons of men, and whose wisdom and divine mercy are infinite, but Who moves in ways of mystery, and whose purposes are often inscrutable—will give thanks humbly and devoutly, tomorrow, that their eyes have beheld this last token of His divine guidance and interference in the affairs of mankind as exemplified in the Conference at Washington.

American Valuation Plan is Explained for the Perplexed

Because of numerous inquiries that have come to The Chronicle concerning the American valuation plan proposed in the tariff act now pending, the following explanation is presented. If we have included explanations of elemental facts and arithmetic with which, as we are well aware, our readers are thoroughly familiar, it has been out of excess of caution, so that no point could possibly remain in doubt.

What is meant by the American valuation scheme proposed as a basis for calculating ad valorem duties on imported goods?

An ad valorem duty is a customs charge fixed at a certain percentage of the value of the article, For example, an American importer brings in a French automobile valued at $2,000. The tariff act now in force imposes an import duty of 45 per cent, ad valorem on such automobiles. Therefore, the importer pays Uncle Sam 45 per cent. of $2,000, or $900 in duties.

In fixing ad valorem duties, a question arises before law makers. Shall the duty be a percentage of the value of the article in the country from which it comes, or shall it be a percentage of the value of the article in the United States?

It is clear that this makes a difference. For if an automobile costing $2,000 in France can profitably be imported into this country it must be worth here at least $2,000 plus the freight and plus the tariff. It must also be worth here as much more as the cost of building such a machine in France is less than it is in the United States.

Let us say that this car, which cost $2,000 in France, cannot be built and sold wholesale in the United States for less than $3,000. Then its value here is $3,000.

Under the present tariff act ad valorem duties are calculated on the cost of the article in the country from which it came. Hence, on this French automobile the importer pays 45 per cent. of $2,000, or $900.

The American valuation plan adopts the other method. It makes the cost of the article in the United States the basis on which to calculate the duty.

But it is not quite so simple as this sounds. There is a complication. The duty on our automobile would not be 45 per cent. of $3,000, even assuming that 45 per cent. will remain the figure in the new act.

Perhaps we can best get at the matter by quoting the old and new acts. The act now in force reads:

The duty shall be assessed upon the actual market value or wholesale price thereof at the time of exportation to the United States, in the principal markets of the country whence exported.

The proposed amended act reads:

The duty shall be assessed upon the actual market value or wholesale price thereof at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the United States, deducting therefrom United States import duties.

The puzzle picture is in this last clause, "deducting therefrom United States import duties."

Taking our automobile again, and assuming that the ad valorem rate on such automobiles will remain at 45 per cent., we shall have to plunge into mathematics.

First we observe that though $3,000 is the figure we must take as the cost of the car in the United States, it is not the figure on which we reckon the 45 per cent. duty. Before we can apply our 45 per cent. we must subtract from $3,000 the amount of the duty.

Sounds like a curious proceeding, doesn't it—subtracting the amount of our duty before we know what it is? But it can be done.

When we have subtracted the amount of the duty from $3,000 we will have the amount on which the duty is calculated. Therefore; $3,000 must be the amount of the duty plus the sum on which the duty is figured.

This sum is 100 per cent. of itself. The duty is 45 per cent. of it. Therefore, $3,000 must be 145 per cent. of the sum we are looking for. One per cent. of that unknown sum must be the 145th part of $3,000, or $20.68 and a fraction. One hundred per cent. must be 100 times $20.68, or $2,068.96.

This is the sum we had to find The duty will be 45 per cent. of $2,068.96, or $931.03. Any one who proves this in the usual way will only need to bear in mind that small fractions have been omitted.

This, then, is the way in which the American valuation plan will work, if adopted.

Put The World Right, Says Harding

In a recent letter to Earl R. Obern, of Chicago, President Harding goes on record as an enthusiastic advocate of the practice of saving money. He declares that saving is the only means to reestablish the world's stores of working capital, and expresses the hope that the public may take this lesson to heart. The president's letter follows:

"You ask me for an expression regarding the subject of saving money.

"I have for many years been pretty well convinced that saving money is largely a matter of habit, and people who make a good beginning at it presently discover that it is by no means impossible, and it is altogether a good thing to do. Just at this juncture in the world's and our country's affairs it is certainly one of the most useful contributions that people could possibly make to putting the world right. I do not believe there is any other way to straighten out the tangle of financial and economic concerns into which the world has been precipitated by the war, except to produce a good deal more than we consume, which means to save, and by our savings to reestablish the world's stores of working capital.

"I have no more earnest hope than that the public may take this lesson to heart and learn to save as, in view of our great national good fortune, they could be able to do."

Teaching Children to Save

What better incentive can be given a child to learn the advantages of thrift than for the father or mother to start an account for the youngster in the Postal Savings? When the deposits to the child's credit have reached the sum of $20, the money can be made to earn more interest by investing this amount, with a few extra nickles added, in one of the new $25 treasury savings certificates bearing the portrait of Theodore Roosevelt, which will be issued by the treasury department toward the end of the year.

America will no longer be considered a nation of spendthrifts if parents of today use the necessary precaution to see that their children—the citizens of tomorrow—are not allowed to grow wasteful and extravagant. Teach them the many advantages of thrift in their young and tender years. It will grow to be the best habit they have when life's responsibilities come.

Thrift will teach them the value of every penny; the wonderful growing power of money. It will teach your child self-reliance and bring self-respect. If you start a Postal Savings account today or invest in a $25 or $100 treasury savings certificate, which yield interest at 4 per cent. quarterly, if held until maturity, you will teach the child to assume his responsibility of citizenship by helping to finance his government.

That small start may be the first rung in the ladder of success in your boy's business life. It will bring your daughter an understanding of money values that will make her an economical housewife some day, a blessing and help to her husband and family.

OUR PILOTAGE SYSTEM

The average ten-year-old child can readily understand why the head of a household protests against the high cost of clothing and other necessities of life; or, even why the large employer desires a cut in wages during a period of financial depression. This same child can no doubt reason out in a minute many points of sound and logical arguments for material reductions in either or both lines, as desired by the contenders.

But, candidly, we are at a loss in our endeavor to figure out why some of our native statesmen have become seized by a desire to reduce the pay and change the system of the members of the Virginia Pilots Association through Legislative enactment, in face of the fact that all those who pay these pilots are entirely satisfied with the rates of pay and all other prevailing conditions, and state over their signatures that they do not want any legislation on this matter.

No matter what the rate of pay—the greater the better from Virginia's point of view—it all comes from outside of and remains within the confines of the State. A valuable asset instead of a liability—an asset which should be fostered by every member of the Legislature.

There are so many workable points on the high prices paid for life's necessities by the consumers in the cities and towns, and the low prices paid to the producers of same (the farmer) in the country, which points daily prick the vitals of every home, as well as the Commonwealth itself, it seems to us that any good, loyal, home-loving statesman can find aplenty to do worth while for several sessions to come, and have no time nor talent to waste on legislative technicalities which, even though successfully "put through," could result only in a great and irreparable loss to the commercial interests of the State.

Rather a dangerous proposition, this tampering with the present pilotage system—a system which has withstood the acid test of time and has reached such a high state of perfection.

All citizens of Virginia should inform themselves on this matter, and take no one's mere word of mouth for granted. The cold, unvarnished facts are obtainable, and yours for the asking. Get wise before it is too late.

Rival ports already have undue advantage in a material sense over those of Hampton Roads, while foreign interests are going the limit in embarrassing the American Merchant Marine. If we would not further aggravate these conditions, it would be well for our forthcoming session of the Legislature to leave the Virginia pilotage law just where it stands—unhampered—and look after other matters at every hand crying aloud for legislative attention.

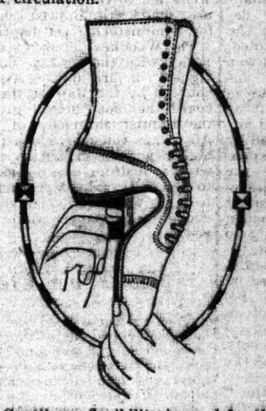
Supports Weak Arches

Because the shank is flexible, and the last modelled to fit the instep, a weak foot is supported in th Cantilever Shoe without resorting to artificial applicances. But the great advantage is that the Cantilever support permits the muscles to exercise in walking, and the blood to circulate, whereupon strength begins to return to the foot.

For exercise is the prime correction of a weak (or fallen) arch. The muscles and ligaments will again hold the arch bones up in their normal position if given a chance to recuperate through exercise and healthful flow of circulation.



Cantilever flexibility is good for the well foot. Every woman who has strong feet should keep them strong by wearing flexible, good-fitting shoes. And if you are one of the unfortunate sufferers of arch troubles, try wearing Cantilever Shoes instead of artificial supports. You will enjoy the comfort and good looks of Cantilever Shoes while your feet are being strengthened by natural exercise.

THAT DULL ACHING.

Don't worry and complain about a bad back. Get rid of it! For weak kidneys, lame and achy backs, your neighbors recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor! Read this statement:

Mrs. L. C. Nalls, 911 Duke St., Alexandria, says: "I could hardly get around the house my back was so weak and sore and when I got down it was almost impossible to straighten again. I couldn't rest at night and mornings I felt so weak and tired it was all I could do to dress. My kidneys acted irregularly and caused me a great deal of misery. My head ached a great deal; it was a dull, steady pain. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Summers' Drug Store and the first box did me so much good I used another. My back stopped aching and my kidneys have not caused me any trouble since."

Mrs. Nalls gave the above statement on April 10, 1915 and on March 15, 1919, she added: "I was pretty bad off with kidney trouble and nothing helped me the way Doan's Kidney Pills did."

U. S. Is Reducing National Debt

Thrift is mankind's way to progress. It is the only way. No other way has ever been marked out or followed. The thrift instinct is in mankind. As this instinct has been developed in the individual and in the nation, progress has been noted. France paid the Franco-Prussian war debt by acquiring the habit of individual savings. Thrift is quite as fundamental to good government as it is to individual well-being, and our government is now taking the lead by making sweeping reductions in expenditures. For over two years the United States government has balanced its budget, current receipts against current expenditures, and has had a small surplus each year to apply to the reduction of the national debt. On the basis of daily treasury statements the government has reduced its national debt by $2,672,593,523 between August 31, 1918, and September 30, 1921.

Restoration of prosperity in this country depends upon thrift. The government has provided a means of individual savings and investment that is safe and certain through the issuance of treasury savings securities, which yield interest at 4 per cent compounded quarterly, when held until maturity. These securities can always be redeemed on short notice at more than their original cost.

Cases disposed of today in the police court follow: Elzie Green colored, arrested by Policemen Durrer and Magner, charged with having a razor in his possession, fined $10 a white man arrested by Policemen Snellings, and Nowland, charged with being drunk, forfeited $5; Edward Fry, colored arrested by Policeman Lawrence Padgett, charged with contempt of court by failing to appear when summoned, sentenced to spend the day at police headquarters; William Jefferson, colored charged with failing to pay a board bill amounting to $11, ordered to pay same.

ELECTED CASHIER

U. S. Lambert Succeeds M. L. Dinwiddie, Resigned, At Citizens' Bank

The board of directors of the Citizens' National Bank at a meeting held today, at that banking house elected Urban S. Lambert cashier to succeed M. L. Dinwiddie, resigned Mr. Dinwiddie tendered his resignation effective October 27 in order that he might accept a position as secretary-treasurer of the Clarendon Trust Company of Clarendon Va.

The board of directors after accepting Mr. Dinwiddie's resignation called him into the board room and presented him with a handsome silver pitcher in recognition of his faithful servcies to that bank.

Mr. Dinwiddie for the past four teen years has been connected with this bank and for the past two and a half yars has been cashier.

Woodlawn Revival

The revival services at Woodlawn Baptist church conducted by Rev John E. Briggs, D. D., and others have closed. This revival was an overwhelming success from the very first service. Nothing approaching such a revival has ever before been known at Woodlawn in the history of the church. There were over 50 professions and a large number of additions. In fact the new additions nearly doubled the membership of the church.

A train of automobiles leaving Woodlawn at 4 p. m. will take the candidates for baptism and members and friends into Washington for the baptizing Sunday evening, November 27th. Dr. Briggs extended a hearty invitation to the Woodlawn pastor to use the Fifth Baptist church pool for administering the baptismal rite.

The Woodlawn church starts a new career with the rosiest hopes and highest aspirations. Already pronounced by the Baptist state missionboard the most liberal giver among the Baptist churches of Vriginia. All things considered it aspires to go higher and be known as the church without a drone or a croaker. Come to the every Sunday morning services at Woodlawn and see a sure enough glad pastor and a happy people.

$7,500 Fund Created

The statement has been made in bank advertisements that if $1 had been placed at compound interest in the year 1 it would have grown by now to a sum larger than all the money in the world.

Such a statement must have caught the eye of Alfred V. Lincoln of Charleston, Mass. His will provides that $7,500 of his estate must be set aside at compound interest for 90 years or until the year 2011. Then the total will be drawn out to plant many trees in Mr. Lincoln's home town.

At 4 per cent compound interest money doubles in 17 years and 246 days. In 90 years, Mr. Lincoln's original $7,500 will amount to about $250,000. Shrewdly invested by trustees, it may turn into millions.

Lord Rosebery said: "Thrift is the surest and strongest foundation of an Empire; so sure, so strong, so necessary, that no nation can long exist that dsregards it."

Women do two-thirds of all the retail buying in the United States.

BUSINESS TO CLOSE

Thanksgivng To Be Generally Observed Here

Thanksgiving here will be marked by a general suspension of business. Church services will be in order, as will be seen in another column of this paper. Banks, city and government offices will be closed all day and the postoffice also will be closed

Many residents have already left the city to spend Thanksgiving elsewhere and many former residents are here for the holiday.

The public schools closed this afternoon and will not reopen till Monday morning, giving the pupils a double holiday.

The private schools also closed till Monday.

Many will spend the day gunnning in the nearby country. A large number of dances and parties have been planned for tomorrow night. Many students from out of town schools and colleges are here for the Thanksgiving holidays.

Money and Markets

Need For Economy

Business is better and sentiment throughout the country reflects courage. Such progress as has been made by the business community toward normal conditions results from a realization that artificial levels of activity will not again be reached in any period near enough to affect the problems of today and from a determination to practise economies of operation more rigid than heretofore thought possible. The need of personal effort and economy is also being increasingly recognized in giving a day's work for a day's pay and in care as to personal expenditure. Business men and executives now recognize that henceforth they must give the most thorough personal attention and application to their enterprises.

Some part of the recent gain in business is unquestionably a result of seasonal demand. Permanent improvement depends to a large extent on foreign buying power, and even more on the adjustment of conditions under which the farmer operates. The last three years have clearly shown that the European situation can be stabilized only by the political and economic efforts of the countries concerned. Domestic conditions can be bettered by steady determination on the part of corporations and individuals to secure greater efficiency and to practise greater economy. This will result in gradual readjustment of the burden of price inequalities now resting on the farmer.

Position of the Farmer

The unsatisfactory situation in agriculture dominates the business outlook. In the cotton states the relatively high price of cotton has encouraged the farmer, but uncertainty both as to demand for cotton goods and as to the size of the admittedly small crop has minimized beneficial effects of better prices. Farmers in the grain states will hardly break even on 1921 operations at current prices of corn and wheat. While it is true that the prices of goods used by farmers have fallen, they are still well above the 1914 level. Grains are all close to or below pre-war prices. In the face of these facts, the contention is not well founded that the farmer is wilfully refusing to buy, thereby delaying the return of better times.

The farmer represents about half the consuming power of the United States .The prices of crops are determined in the international market, and there are no reasonable grounds for an expectation of market increases in those prices at any time in the immediate future. Reduction in the prices of what farmers buy would have exactly the same effect as higher prices for agricultural products. It is futile to contend that because of high labor and transportation costs the prices of other articles and commodities cannot decline to the level of agricultural prices. If ways are not found to lower the prices of all classes of goods which they need, and would like to buy, by means of lower money wages, higher labor efficiency cheaper transportation and lessened distribution costs, the farmers themselves will not suffer greatly, but business of all kinds will be forced to operate on a restricted basis.

Competition Between Manufacturers

In the period immediately ahead, manufacturers will face the most severe competition in a generation. It is now clear that many important industries are seriously overbuilt, when measured in terms of effective demand here and abroad. There is no method by which competition can be avoided, but there are methods by which it can be successfully met. Overhead charges should be rigidly examined and cut to the lowest point consistent with productive efficiency. Costs should be critically studied and such examination should include not only factory operations, but the entire producing organizations. In periods of high profits, useless frills are certain to be introduced into the best systems. Simplicity is now of necessity the watchword and much careful but courageous elimination is necessary.

In many lines, labor costs must be further reduced. Such reduction can in part be attained by lower wages, and in part by increased efficiency in organization for production. A considerable part of labor inefficiency is at times due to actual defects in plant and organization. Business has two duties, first, to provide the best means for efficient production by its labor, and second, to insist on a day's work for a day's pay.

Money Rates

With every evidence of easier money conditions in the main centers, relatively high rates are maintained in the agricultural regions of the country where available funds are limited. Considerable time always elapses before the full benefits of cheaper money are gradually felt, but certain factors now operative should not be lost sight of in relation to the future of money rates. The large volume of money available for short-time investment, as evidenced by the heavy oversubscription to the United States Treasury Certificates, issued at lower rates than heretofore and the active market for prime commercial paper is partly the result of the unsatisfactory business situation. Manufacturers and merchants who have liquidated their stocks find themselves with idle funds because there is so narrow a market for their product that they cannot keep their funds employed in their own operations. Such money is available for short-time investment only.

On the other hand, the country banks carry large amounts of farm mortgages and other non-liquid obligations, and in many cases these banks will require funds to meet the needs of the next crop year now not far ahead. The agricultural districts need money for long-time investments, so that bank funds may be freed for current requirements. The Federal Farm Loan system is meeting this situation to a certain extent and other funds are also being made available.

TUESDAY, NOV. 23, 1813.

The Democratic Governor of North Carolina, delivered his message on the 16th inst. to the legislature. We have never yet seen so able an expose of the defenceless state of the country as this paper exhibits. The governor points out with minute precision, every vulnerable point of the state, declares that the militia are without lead, powder or flints, and even suggests the manner in which the enemy ought to make his approaches. According to the doctrines of the day, the Governor has rendered himself clearly liable to a prosecution for treason against the United States—at any rate to the just indignation of the mob.

THE ADVANCE ON SEDAN

Early on the morning of November 1st the battleworn remnants of the Rainbow Division started in pursuit of the retreating Hun. Of the 259 men who were in our company when we opened our offensive in the Argonne Forest, only 38 were left to engage in this the grand finale. Most of them were killed or missing in action, while a score or more were in the hospital as a result of wounds and the remainder were physically unfit for further service.

Our company was now under the command of one officer only, a second lieutenant. The entire first battalion had been completely shot to pieces, there being not more than two or three hundred men left. We were to relieve the 27th division, which was then assisting in pushing the enemy on toward Sedan, its last line of resistance. For two days we hiked over hill and valley, trudged through woods and waded streams, nowhere meeting with any resistance. At night fall we would pitch our pup tents wherever we happened to be, and at day break would resume the march. Corned beef and hard tack composed our daily meals,—only once did we get a meal from our kitchen. The "Squareheads" were blowing up the bridges in their retreat, which may have accounted for the failure on the part of "Snail" (our mule whose name was aptly given). Though Snail was temperamentally unfitted for the hurry and rush of battle—he was the "still pastures" type of mule. But meals were not needed half so badly as water. We were, of course, not permitted to dring from springs, so the rain water found in puddles along the road was utilized.

On the third day of our advance we had reached the danger zone and from that time we were constantly being bombed by the German aviators. Always at night those love messages were coming to us. That was the most nerve-racking experience of a front line soldier. When going over the top, a soldier has an even chance to "bump" the enemy before the enemy "bumps" him, but not so in these air raids. One has no means of protection, save only to lie flat on the ground and hug close to Mother Eearth. We had not time to "dig in," so we could only lie there in our pup those bombs dropping in the valley below. Each one seemed to come closer and closer; but divine Providence in his infinite wisdom had decreed that we should lose no more of our company by death. On the fourth we made little time by reason of the congestion of the roads and by-paths. Many American divisions like our own were pushing along to relieve a tired division from the front line of advance. Cannon, wagons, kitchens, ambulances and other rolling equipment could be seen for miles around, advancing over the roads while foot soldiers were advancing by the thousands over the hills. It was a beautiful and spectacular sight—those American doughboys rushing forward in pursuit of the remnants of Germany's retreating divisions—her best divisions at that.

On November 7th we caught up with the 27th division which we were to relieve. They immediately dropped back while our division took their places in this great army advancing upon the city of Sedan where the French in 1870 were so severely defeated by the Germans.

On the afternoon of November 8th we halted on outskirts of the town of Harricourt and there prepared our lines of skirmish, and, with our Brigade General Douglas McArthur at the head, surrounded the town. At nightfall we plunged down upon the enemy and established our headquarters in the town hall. Here we held forth until the division then coming up from the road to relieve us arrived.

We billeted that night in an old school house which the Germans had evacuated a few hours before our arrival. Once more we were under shelter, but not for long; for before we had time to unfold our blankets for the night, the lieutenant in charge moved us out, lest the enemy might bombard the town during the night. We were permitted, however, to gather up the straw bedding the Germans hal left, and, carrying this, we moved out of the town into a wood nearby. We had slept in the woods so much that exclamations of "Ha! Ha! back home again!" were heard on all sides.

The next morning our loathing for the "Squarehead" had increased immeasurably; for they had left their "cooties" in the straw bedding, which upon close examination, revealed a very unusual specimen—big red ones, with stripes across their backs, and the number would seem to indicate that they had been overseas since the days of Bismarck.

On the following morning the division that was to relieve us arrived and took over the city of Harricourt, while we advanced to the village of Verier, arriving there on Sunday evening. Here we heard rumors of the armistice.

Our chaplain held services in a church that night. The place was packed with soldiers, dirty, tired, hungry, unshaven doughboys there listening to the preaching of the gospel amid the roaring of cannon from the distant hills. No artist could paint that scene. A number of colored soldiers, who were building the roads nearby, sang old-time southern melodies; a sergeant played an old organ, and we all tried to sing the songs, led by Chaplain Cobb. Then came the sermon. Never will any doughboy who was there forget his opening remarks. Here they are as recorded in the diary of the writer: "Boys, we are a long, long way from home, but not a long time from home." It was Sunday night, November 10th, but no one had any idea that the end of our fighting was so near.

We were now happy in the thought that for a few days at least we were out of the fighting line. The next day we moved on to the village of Brequenay, and 4 o'clock on the afternoon of November 11th we were lined up and informed of the signing of the armistice. The feeling that crept over us might be expressed somewhat as follows: "The rainbow has disappeared in yonder sky, but if the clouds of war again gather over our land, the Rainbow (Division) will come out again."

The Advance to the Rhine.

After hearing the terms of the armistice we were at Brequenay when it reached us— we did nothing but speculate as to the time we would probably be sent back to the States. For several days we rested in this little shell torn village, quartered in barns, stables, churches, and private homes. We would sit around all day and a good part of the night drawing mental pictures of ourselves eating Christmas dinner at home. Of course, our division would be the first to go home. But it was just another evidence of the fact that dreams seldom come true—at least as we expected them to.

Early one afternoon while we were in he midst of these discussions, this familiar command rang through the air—"Roll packs and make it snappy" and then we all had an opportunity to engage in our favorite sport, known in the army as "crabbing," or in every some of our favorites: "Going for a little walk, I suppose—25 or 30 miles?" "What do they think we are? 'Mules?'" "I'm off this bird's army for life, believe me; $7.50 per month and 'slum' for being a pack mule."

Late that afternoon we got started and hiked some three or four miles to a village called Landreville only to find another regiment billeted there; so we slept that night in a field on the outskirts of the village. Early the next morning a detail was dispatched to the town of St. George's to provide barns, hay lofts, churches, etc., for us to sleep in on our arrival there. After breakfast we moved on to St. George's, arriving there late in the afternoon and finding very comfortable quarters.

Fifty or more of us occupied a shell torn Catholic church, the roof of which had been blown off by the fleeing "Squareheads." The benches had disappeared, but the organ was still intact. Since the floor was made of concrete, we kindled a fire in the middle of it and sat around building air castles, while a doughboy tried to inspire us by furnishing unmelodious strains from the organ. On the church walls the Germans had painted such expressions as these—"Gott Mit Uns;" "Gott Strafe England" and the like.

It was while we were in St. George's that our hopes for an early return home were blasted. We received the very unwelcome news that our division was one of the number assigned to the "Army of Occupation," and we were to set out on foot for the town of Neiderzisson, Germany, a town situated on the Rhine.

By the terms of the armistice the enemy must evacuate each town in a stipulated number of days, and we were to enter each evacuated city in our sector a certain number of hours behind them. And so from St. George's France, we followed behind "Squareheads" through Belgium and Luxemburg on up to the Rhine. That hike to the Rhine, covering a period of seventeen or eighteen days of hard marching on two spare meals a day, was nothing short of a "mankiller." Hiking as we were with heavy packs from twelve to twenty miles a day, doing guard duty at night; all without sufficient food, was enough to test the courage and strength of any man. Of course, there were hundreds who fell sick along the way. Field hospitals were travelling with our division, the medical corps going with us into every village and holding sick call every morning; pills were passed out for all ailments, from sore feet to earache. No one was sent to the hospital so long as he could stand on his feet, and a temperature of 104 more was necessary before it was deemed advisable to send one to bed.

It was on November 18th that we

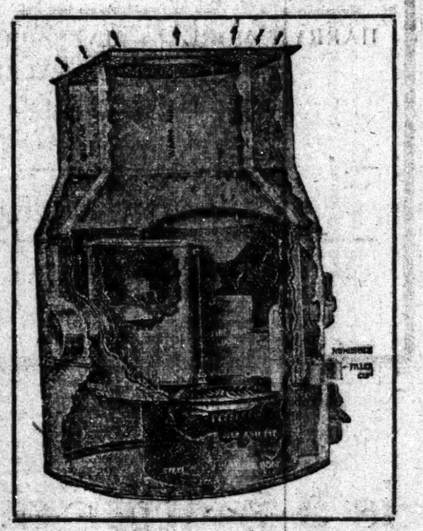
"There's a Blizzard on the Way"

SOME morning this winter your family will face that reality. Will you be ready for it? Don't forget the dangers and discomforts of last winter. Don't put off the selection of a new heating plant for your home too long. Don't go through another winter without the cozy comfort of "QUAKER" Heat.



Now is the best time to prepare your house for the damp, chill winds and the cold days that are sure to come. If you install a QUAKER FURNACE now, you'll not mind the time when "there's a blizzard on the way" because

"Quaker" Heat is Quicker Heat

QUAKER

"The Pipeless Furnace That's Built of Steel"

The Quaker Furnace is built of steel, which radiates heat three times as fast as cast iron. Yet the Quaker holds the heat longer because the firepot is lined with FIRE BRICK like the crucible of a blast furnace.

Quaker Heat is cleaner heat, too. The joints are riveted like a boiler. No cement to crack and crumble. Soot, ashes, dust and dirt positively cannot leak through. The hotter the furnace gets the tighter the joints become.

OTHER IMPORTANT FEATURES

The Quaker has an extra large water pan (with handy outside filler) which keeps the air moist and healthful. The firepot can't crack. The combustion chamber is extra large. The special hot blast saves fuel. Doors are ground EXACTLY to give perfect air-tight fit. Free catalog tells all about these and other Quaker improvements Send for it today.

Quaker Steel Pipeless Furnaces are easily installed in old or new homes. Only one register required. Made with 18, 22, 26, and 28 inch firepots. Delivered quickly from nearest wearhouse. Send for free catalog.

Former Marine Joins Explorer on Expedition to Far North

On his way to unexplored regions of the Far North, there is one top sergeant of the Marine Corps Reserve who is not going to be carried as A. W. O. L. at Washington for the next year or two if the Article R. F. D. mail carriers get snowbound.

Frederick William Maurer, of New Philadelphia, Ohio, is now at the Golden Gate Hotel in Nome, and ready to shove off as a member of the Stefansson Arctic Expedition. From that out post of the snows he notified Major-General Lejeune in a letter mailed on September 7, not to expect the monthly reports required of the sea soldier reservists until he returned to civilization and the high cost of living.

Maurer was a member of the former Stefansson expedition, and the ure of the Arctic proved stronger tahn the rewards of salesmanship in Ohio soon after he was placd on the inactive list. is old bunkies rest content with the idea that Maurer will tell it for the Marines in a land where disarmament is an accomplished faet, and they point to him as the latest proof of the Marine Corps boast that Marines go everywhere and see everything." Maurer's enlistment, by the way, will expire on Washington's birthday, 1922, somewhere in the vicinity of the North Pole.

"AMERICA AT CROSS ROADS OF DESTINY," SAYS MRS. CALHOUN.

"America today stands at the cross roads of her destiny," writes Mrs. Calhoun. "The war and its devastation left a sadly torn, unstable, and unhappy world in its wake, In common with other nations, America is in a dangerous state of unrest. Irreverence, loss of faith, selfishness, grow more rampant day by day. All nations, and our country in particular, need a stabilizing force that shall bring convincingly once more to the minds of men and women the homely virtues that lay in the simple old standards of our forefathers, the brave men and women of old who builded a mighty nation on these shores to serve as a haven of refuge and liberty for the oppressed hordes of the older civilizations.

"We have wandered far from the examples set by our sturdy ancestors who dared the toil, hunger, pain, and disappointment in a new land to carve out a nation that men should call great. Many of our beloved institutions are becoming less fevered, and some are actually scorned.

FRANCHISE BROUGHT NEW RESPONSIBILITIES FOR WOMEN.

"With the franchise there have come new responsibilities for American women; new burdens they must bear with wisdom and with strength. At the very time when they are most needed, with their great gifts of sympathy and intuition and thier passion for caring for others, women enter American life in its fullest sense as citizens; when their influence may be the vital force that hall stem the tides of unrest and turn the public mind and the public conscience back to the realization of what their true allegiance to their country properly demands.

"This is the basic thought back of this Foundation. The thought that women mus give of their best in the new sate of national life into which it has pleased God to call them; and further, to create a point of centralization for all thinking women who have a love in their hearts for the higher things. Women who would rather die than have the sanctuary of the home besmirched and who are willing as volunteer soldiers to do their utmost for the preservation of the highest in our civilzaton."

THE PRACTICAL AIMS OF THE FOUNDATION

Such are the ideals of the Woman's National Foundation. Turning to its practical side, it intends to promote the education of women in civic knowledge and rights; the teaching of Americanism by restoring the old simple standards; the holding of referendum on questions of national importance through its local centers in every part of the country and thus registering the will of the women of America; the fostering of music, drama, and the other arts and the furthering of all efforts making for the welfare of women and children and to afford the women of America a national club home in the capital of the country—an acropolis of woman's achievement—where the problems of women shall receive the thought and the study that shall lead to their solution. A bureau of information will be maintained at the Washington headquarters where questions concerning the nation's business work in the departments, and legislation will be accurately and quickly answered. In a word, it will be a clearing house of woman's activities not interfering with the aims of other organizations, but unifying and solidifyng the progress of American women, only possible, in an organization in the capital of the country. free from sectionalism and partisanship. A "Capital for Women" it has been aptly named, promoting practically every activity in which women, not only as club women, but as individuals, are interesting. Where no local centers of the Foundation are formed any woman may become a member at large and be entitled to the rights, privileges, and opportunities of the organization.

HISTORIC SITE ALREADY SECURED

Through the patriotic cooperation of the founders of the Woman's National Foundation a million-dollar site in the heart of northwest Washington, a veritable park, rich in historic memories, has been secured for a permanent home of the institution. It is approximately ten acres in area and commands a sweeping panorama of the more important parts of the city. Congress has again and again considered purchasing this site and preserving its natural beauties. Representative Mondell, the majority leader of the House, said on the floor of Congress that it was the most beautiful tract of wooded land in the center of Washington and perhaps the most beautiful in any city in the world.

TEMPLE TRIUMPHANT. LIVING MEMORIAL . TO. AMERICAN WOMANHOOD

Plans have been drawn by F. Burrall Hoffman, Jr., and Murray Hoffman of New York City, for a group of magnificent buildings that will in themselves be a memorial to American womanhood and a most notable achievement on the part of the members of the Foundation. The main building is to be the Temple Triumphant—a great memorial to achieving American women through all the generations of national existence. This temple will contain an auditorium seating two thousand persons, providing an open forum for the women of the country and a meeting place for great conventions of women gathered together to discuss the vital problems of the day. Here also will be housed the executive offices of the Foundation and those of other national organizations that may become affiliated with it.

Nearby is to be the guest house, which will provide ideal accomodations for visiting members in a modern hotel, exclusively for women, at most moderate rates. Here also will be housed the work rooms, experimental kitchens, laboratories, and other equipment for the scientific correspondence courses through which the Foundation hopes to reach and interest rural as well as city women.

A beautiful Sylvan theater will afford a setting for pageants, pastoral plays, classic and folk dances and entertainments for children. It is proposed in the outline of this theater to offer a home to made in America art, music, and drama that shall give real encouragement to American artists, composers and dramatists. The Founders Club is another building of the group planned for those who become founders, and applications for a number of sites for national homes of women's organizations have already been received.

This central plant in Washington will send programs from its various departments to local centers through out the country. From these centers will be selected delegates to come to the annual convention of the Foundation in the national capital.

BUILDER MEMBERSHIP OFFERED TO ALL

In order to stress the memorial aspect of the Foundation opportunity is at this time offered to become builder members and thus erect the splendid group of buildings planned. Anyone who subscribes $10 or more becomes a builder member and may feel that she, in effect, owns a square foot of the land and all that is builded thereon and has dedicated it to womanhood through the Foundation in the name of some beloved woman. As a builder member the donor is entitled to a certificate of remembrance to treasure in the home and a duplicate to be placed in the book of remembrance in the Hall of Memory. The like privilege of nominating the name of any woman chosen for entrance in the book of remembrance is also granted to any man who makes subscription to the building fund of the Foundation of ten dollars or more. More information in detail regarding this memorial membership will be furnished upon inquiry of "The Membership Committee, Woman's National Foundation, Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D. C."

MEN TO ERECT MOTHERS MEMORIAL SHAFT

Still further carrying out the memorial idea Captain C. C. Calhoun has contributed $1,000 to start a fund to erect a shaft in the Foundation grounds to "The Mothers of America" in memory of his own mother. Only men will be asked to contribute to this fund, and, while the shaft will memorialize all American mothers from pioneer to the present times, the names of the mothers of the donors will be carved thereon. A special committee of men is being organized to erect this mothers shaft as one of the first structures of the Foundation site.

HALL OF .MEMORY IN HONOR GREAT. WOMEN OF. THE STATES

A unique feature of the Temple Triumphant will be the Hall of Memory, suggested by Mrs. George Barnett, one of the board of governors, which is to have fifty-one memorial pillars, one for each state, Alaska, District of Columbia, and Hawaii, on which will be inscribed the names of the greatest women of that state or territory. A committee of historical research will be appointed to select these names with representatives from each state, and patriotic and other organizations are asked to make nominations of the women they consider should be thus honored. Women whose- names are selected may have belonged to any period since the settlement of America, but must not now be living.

This idea has taken like wild fire among the women of the states. They realize that this will make this Acropolis in very truth a monument to America's womanhood of the past, the present, and the future, and more especially to those brave pioneer women who, dauntless in the face of danger and hardship, marched with their men across the continent and to whom, to the shame of our country be it said, no appropriate memorial has as yet been erected

STATES. ALREADY. NOMINATE GREAT WOMEN

Among the nominations which have already been made for the various pillars are the following: Delaware, Mary Vining; Minnesota, Harriette Leavenworth; Indiana, Anna Symmes Harrison; Oregon, Abigail Scott Duniway; Arkansas, Nancy Stinnett Marshall; Florida, Donna Dolores; North Dakota, Sackajawea; Washington state, Narcissa Whitman, Colorado, Sarah R. started for the Rhine, hiking 50 minutes of each hour from early morning until four or five o'clock in the afternoon. A detail was sent ahead of us to arrange "billets" in the village where we were to stay over night. The first day's hiking brought us to Ire le Sec, France, near the Belgian border. The next day we entered Belgium, and upon our arrival in Harnoncourt, we were given a rousing reception. The town band came out several miles to meet us and escorted us through an arch beautifully decorated with flowers and flags into the town, where a dance was given our officers by the town officials. We were enthusiastically received. Children ran along beside us, crying in their native tongue, "Long Live America." The Stars and Stripes were flying everywhere. These flags had been provided in many cases by drawing what was supposed to be our national emblem on paper—perhaps the work of the school children. It was interesting to note the variety displayed in these representations of the flag; some had dozens of stars, some had but one, the number of stars being apparently of minor importance to those dear people of quaint old Belgium.

The same band which had met us the evening before led us out through the corporate limits, and we proceeded on our way to Rachecourt, our last stop in Belgium. We arrived here late in the afternoon, sought out a sleeping place in a hay loft, fell in line for soup, which we speedily disposed of, and before darkness came on we were fast asleep, dreaming dreams of home.

"They Satisfy"

SPORTS

The Virginia Daredevil Athletic club will meet the Friends' Athletic club in their first game of the season at Armory Hall tonight. The lineup of the Daredevil's, it is announced, is the best yet. The game will start at 7:45 p. m.

Richmond--Wm. Fox

More fine entertainment is promised at the Richmond theatre today and tomorrow, when Tom Mix will appear in his latest William Fox picture, "The Night Horsemen," based on Max Brand's story "Wild Geese." This tale is a sequel to "The Untamed," one of Mix's best photoplays, which was shown here some time ago. And yet 'tis said "The Night Horsemen" is better than its predecessor. Mix again assumes the role of Whistling Dan.

Ingamor-"Rose of the West"

The northern wilds are used for the setting of "Rose of the West," the William Fox photoplay at the Ingomar theatre today. The story of a woman's love and loyalty is powerfully portrayed and the supporting cast is all that could be asked for. Some very thrilling climaxes mark the development of the plot.

Great Sachem of Virginia

Great Sachem Oscar Powell, of Newport News, Va., will pay an official visit to Osceola Tribe No. 1 and Seminole Tribe No. 35 tonight in the wigwam of Seminole Tribe, Alexandria National Bank building. The business session of the two tribes will start promptly at 7:30 p. m., followed by the Warrior's degree to be conferred by a picked team from the two local tribes. After the degree work is over the joint committee have arranged a program which will include addresses by local red men and the Great Sachem, after which supper will be served the membership.

An Appeal To Alexandria

Every man and woman in Alexandria remembers the work of the Salvation Army in the world war.

Fearless, tireless, efficient and well equipped it stood close to the firing line, trench and dug out, always ready with its gifts of doughnuts and hot coffee.

No service was too menial too difficult, or too dangerous for the Salvation Army lassies to perform for our doughboys.

The Salvation never failed your boy in his time of need.

The Salvation Army will not fail you in its work for the hungry and the needy in Alexandria.

The army does not ask for itself but that it may serve humanity for you in your community.

So let the Salvation Army be your search light, throwing its rays of relief into the homes of the poor and needy in Alexandria. You can help us now, look around your home and see if you have anything you do not want, old garments, old shoes, old bed covers, then again we can use coal or wood, or anythng in the line of groceries.

Now for the children you may find some old toys you could give us to give them on Christmas. It is not too soon to look those things up. Look them up now before the Christmas rush, and send them to us or we will call for them. Address 321 King street, Phone 519.

A letter of thanks to Miss Mary E. Carlin 416 Duke street, for the wonderful bundle of new garments she sent us for the poor.

was shot in the eye in North Queen street and seriously injured.

Earlier in the day three other persons were killed in scattered frays. This was the first day of actual functioning of the new Ulster government created by the Home Rule act of last spring. Snipers began their activities in the York street area under cover of the mists of dawn, when one man was killed and several others were wounded. Two other deaths occurred later as a result of shooting affrays.

Newport News.—The tanker Alameda, with flames leaping 200 feet in the air, was towed in the Virginia capes about mid-night yesterday. The flames were extinguished during the night and the steamer now is beached about three miles below Bug Light.

Speech of Charles M. Schwab

For many years it has been my pleasure and my privilege to address you, my associates and coworkers in iron and steel. This year the atmosphere is one of deep and serious appreciation of a great occasion. We have had in the past many eminent guests, but, however significant our meetings have been, no on of them has made us realize as I think we do tonight, the feeling, even deeper than reverence, that is inspred by the presence amongst us of this the greatest Commander in the world's history.

I like to feel, and in the presence of this gathering the feeling is most intense, that there is something peculiarly fine and honorable and strong in our profession of workers in iron and steel.

The painters of word pictures have never been able to describe a grat and strong character better than as a "Man of Iron." The soldiers who bared their breasts to enemy shot and bayonet were described as men with iron nerves and will of steel.

In our own day, when we seek a comparison for what is endurng for what is steadfast in character, we cand find no better symbol than "steel."

And so, my dear Marshal, may I tell you in the language of the greatest of poets that you have been grappled to our souls with hoops of steel.

Great as he was in all responsibilities of war leadership, Marshal Foch will stand as the supreme representative in all history of unity of action and command. Have you, my friends, ever thought how frequently this profound principle of action applies in life and industry? Individuals and individual interests can accomplish but little; united effort and co-operation under single leader ship can accomplish anything. So it is, in industry, our industry, all industry; unity of action, unity of command is the most effective means to great results.

When a battle is to be fought when a game is to be won, when a struggle of any kind is to be under taken, we need first of all the Great Commander, the man with a vision to see what should be done, the man with courage to undertake it, the man with power of leadership to induce other men to follow him.

We of the great steel industry have much to learn from this principle. The greatness of industrial Aemrica has been realized through the applicaiton of it, and America will continue to rise to still greater heights of achievement as she allows this principle to have freedom of action.

We in this country are in the midst of a great business depression, a depression which is affecting the steel industry quite as acutely as any other industry in the country. To escape from this slough of despond the various factors of the steel business must consider the interests of the whole rather than merely seek to promote their selfish aims.

In Judge Gary, the Pesrresident of our Iron and Steel Institute we have a really great leader. Let us follow him in his optimism and his determination to surmount the many pitfalls. Let us share in his great vision, let us stand together in goodwill and co-operation for the hastening of thatM great era of prosperity which is surely before us.

It is more a pleasure for me to be able to pay my tribfute of respect and admiration for the brilliant Marshal who s our guest tonight. I salute him, not alone because he is so great a Commander, but I salute him with added enthusiasm because he comes from France, the France which sent us Lafayette in our own struggle for independence, the same Franlce with whom the United States have not only never had a serious dispute, but with whom our relations have been from the beginnings of our history upon terms of such intimacy and sympathy.

When the war in Europe broke out and the safety of France was threat ened, my sympathy and interest went out to France with all the ardor I possessed. And I may be permitted to relate a bit of history. The war had been in progress only a short time when I wrote a letter to one of the leading statsmen of France telling him that, if it would help we would gladly place the ordnance and armament manufacturing facilities of the Bethlehem Steel Company at the disposal of the French Government, believing, as we did, that we were the only large ordnanc plant in the world sufficiently free and independent to be in a positon at that time to render such a service.

M nuyMoO $ nnpS f- ,tag

All classes of men are prone to overestimate the service they rendered to you, my dear Marshal, in the winning of the war. I hope I shall not exceed the bounds of modesty if I refer briefly to what our American iron and steel industry did in that direction.

From the beginning to the end of the war, our industry furnished for war purposes nearly fifty million tons of steel. The mere figure does not picture to the mind what that means. And yet fifty million tons of steel would build a modern railway ten times around the earth.

During the war we talked of a "bridge of ships" across the Atlantic Fifty million tons of steel put into the hulls of ships would actually build a bridge of ships from the United States to France.

It was a truly a war of material and machines as well as of men, and we, of the American iron and steel industry like to think, not that we won the war, but that we accomplished in full the part that was assigned to us. The demands then made upon our industry not noly produced steel; they produced men who were at any time prepared to outdo in personal effort and sacrifice even the former great achievements of their industry.

After war comes peace. Our own great General Grant, after our Civil War said: "Let us have Peace." The nation is prouder of that prayer than of any warlike utterance he ever made, and that sentence surrounds his tomb in our city.

"Let us have Peace," That sublime phrase of General Grant's might well be the motto of the World Conferenece now assembled at Washington.

And I would like to take advantage of this occasion to say something which has long been upon my heart, and which at this significant moment it is clearly my duty to say. It was stated at some of the sessions of the recent League of Nations meeting in Geneva, it has often been carelessly suggested in the Press, that the flame of war is in great nasure kept alive by those interested in the private building of naval ships and the manufacture of munitions of war.

I can, of course, speak only for myself but I believe I know and express the sentiments of others placed in similar positons to mine when I say this:

I am at the head of the largest war materials manufacturing works in the world. The shipyards of my Company build more naval ships than are built in any other yards under one management in the United States. But, I have been thrilled beyond expression, as has every good American, by the brilliant and statesman like scheme laid befor the Conference at Washington by Secretary Hughes. The carrying out of that plan may involve great moncetary loss in some quarters, but such a thing as financial loss can be of no consideration when compared to the inestimable boon to mankind which would be involved in the realization of that magnificent plan. What red blooded American would not, indeed, make any sacrifice if the burden of armament could be lifted from the shoulders of humanity. May God speed the day when this noble conception can be ralized.

If the armed protection of our country is necessary, the establishment of which I am the head, will devote itself with all its energy to providing means for protection of this country's homes and families. But I say to you from the bottom of my heart that if the statesmen now assembled in Washington under the far-sighted leadership of our president and Secretary Hughes, should find it possible to bring about disarmament and permanent peace, gladly would I see the war-making machinery of the Bethlehem Steel corporation sunk to the bottom of the ocean.

Nothing could contribute more to the ultimate and permanent prosperity and happiness of the world than the conclusion of agreements between the great nations of the world which would eliminate war and the causes of war. And, so, let us say to the men gathered in Washington, let it go out from this gathering of men of the steel and iron industry, that we are solidly behind every effort they can make which will hasten the coming of the time when war shall be no more.

If disarmament inflicts a money loss upon us, the American iron and steel industry will accept it willingly and gladly. We will do so not in a spirit of mere idealism and self sacrifice, but in a belief that the greatest permanent, material prosperity would be brought about by the concentration of the energies of mankind upon constructive activities; upon means for well-being, and not for the destruction of civilization.

IMPURE BLOOD DRAGS ON NERVES

A Course in Gude's Pepto-Mangan Makes Blood Rich and Red

When blood gets thin and watery, clogged with waste matter, as it does when over-exertion and straining cause exhaustion, there is a drag on the nerves. The body becomes feeble because there are not enough red blood cells carrying oxygen to all parts of the body. The power of endurance is low and the slightest disturbance ruffles the nerves. Everything and everybody is trying. Nothing seems to be right. Everything and everybody is really right, but the trouble is with weak blood.

One of the things people who take Pepto-Mangan notice—after a short course, three times a day, steadily taking the liquid or the tablets—is the certain, if gradual, return to normal. Sleep refreshes and food restores the energy. Days are calmer. That is normal, healthy blood doing its work. Get Gude's Pepto-Mangan at your druggist. Look for the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan' on the package. Advertisement.

FELT LIKE AN IRON BAND AROUND HEAD

This Is How Lynchburg, Va., Woman Declares Her Headaches Often Affected Her.

Everybody will read with interest the statement of Miss M. E. Woodford, 1808 Filmore St., Lynchburg, Va., who says:

"I dont believe anybody ever suffered from headaches like I did. The pains felt like an iron band was being drawn around my head and my temples would throb until I was driven almost distracted. I shudder when I think of those awful headaches. I had no appetite either.

"I owe Tanlac an everlasting debt of gratitude for entirely ridding me of those terrible headaches. My stomach has been toned up too, and everything I eat agrees with me now Tanlac certainly brought me health and happiness."

Tanlac is sold in Alexandria by Edgar Warfield, Jr., and by leading druggists everywhere.

BEAUTY IS HARMONY

There can be no harmony, and therefore no beauty, in a home in which the wife and mother is cross and irritable and dull-spirited. Often as not, disease is at the bottom of such a condition.

Let the woman who is always tired and who suffers from low spirits and mysterious aches and pains, only try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She will then see that the beauty and harmony will be restored to her home with the return of her health and good spirits. 279-1c

60,000 Honor Diaz

Chicago, Nov. 22.—Chicago gave Gen. Armando Diaz, Italy's war hero, a tremendous ovation yesterday.

He was greeted on his arrival by 50,000 cheering Americans of Italian descent, while guns on the lake front boomed a salute.

His progress to his hotel was virtually over flowers, as his former countrymen tossed their nosegay contributions in his path. After the official welcome and speeches, he attended a mass celebrated by Archbishop Mendelein and was accorded the degree of honorary doctor of laws by Loyola university.

He later reviewed a parade of 60,000 veterans of the world war, patriotic societies and school children.

Farmers Holding Their Bonds

The Painesville, Ohio, Telegraph insists that most of the Liberty Bonds bought by the farmers still remain in their possession. "Farmers, probably more than any other class, understand the enormous value of these securities, their unchallengeable safety, the certainty of interest payments," says the Telegraph in commenting editorially on the wisdom of holding on to the government bonds purchased during the war. "The last thing a farmer would care to sacrifice when short of cash is his land. Next to that, no doubt, is his Liberty Bonds. They have the solidity of the land itself."

New Slogan For Unified Savings Movement

The savings division is indebted to the Hon. Will H. Hays, the postmaster general, for this new slogan which will be used in the government's campaign to encourage systematic savings and wise investment:

"The United States government, through the postoffice department, offers you postal savings for the deposit of your money and United States treasury savings certificates for investment."

Over the postmaster general's signature this slogan will be displayed in all postoffices.

Piling up resources today against tomorrow's opportunities and requirements means progress sure and certain. Try it. Invest in treasury savings securities.

Chloroforming of Capital

Thrift consists of making wise use of one's savings. In some cases the wisest use of such earnings is spending them. In others it includes saving and investing a portion of them in treasury savings securities. Merely saving without investing isn't thrift. It is a sort of chloroforming of capital, putting it to sleep when it should be working. It is just that kind of savings that Postmaster General Hays is trying to bring out of the socks and sugar bowls in liberalizing the postal savings.

WAR'S AFTERMATH

Great Britain has 1,475 disabled nurses of the world war.

The cost of maintaining the 14,000 American troops in the army of occupation in Germany is nearly $1,000 a month.

One thousand airplanes can be built for the same cost as one battleship.

In all the wars of the world, waged between 1790 and 1918, the total death loss is estimated at 14,448,000.

English is the official language of the disarmament conference, in Washington, D. C.

From the first day of the World War to the first day of demobilization, Germany lost 1,808,545 men, including 52,006 officers.

The disarmament conference in session in the hall of the Americans in the Pan-American building, Washington, D. C., it is said, will last at least two months.

The American dead in Europe, according to plans submitted to President Harding for approval, will be concentrated in four American cemeteries in France and one in Belgium, and another in England, over which the Stars and Stripes will wave forever. Originally the bodies were scattered in 2,400 burial places and 10,000 isolated graves.

Hoarding Is Not Thrift

The Erie, Pa., Times rightly says that it is hardly necessary to say that the thrift movement as it is now being taught has no relation to miserliness or to the mere hoarding of money. Those who save in the right spirit are the ones who always have money to go out and buy what they need. They are the ones who are welcomed by the merchants and the storekeepers, because they know what they want and have the money to pay for it.

GROUP OF VIRGINIA PILOT ASSOCIATION APPRENTICES

Enough to care for one hundred per cent. increase in commerce. This association selects its own apprentices, as is the case in most of the ports, which practice and principle are perfectly right and proper; as it might well be asked: "Who is better qualified for determining such selections than the men who have to train, live and work with them?"

The members of the Board of Pilot Commissioners are appointed by the judges in or near Norfolk and Newport News, with pilot representation in the minority. It may be logically assumed that these judges, who are in the midst of commercial activity, are well qualified for making such appointments.

Neither party, faction, station, sect or section has ever been discriminated against in the selection of apprentices. The association has apprentices in the different classes from various sections of the State—Richmond, Roanoke and a number of counties—the farmer's son looking the same to the association as the son of the bankers. In fact, the association has at present several apprentices from farther up-State, and they have proven to be excellent material, these mountaineer farmer boys.

Out of twenty-five apprentices now in training, not one is the son or brother of a pilot.

Ten Commandments For The Home Town

[Fred Eastman in Sanford (Fla.) Herald.]

I. Thou shalt love thy home town above all other towns. Thou shalt be loyal to her people and to her institutions.

II. Thou shalt guard thy home town from the hosts of evil that would invade and destroy her soul. Thou shalt keep the good name of thy home town clean and without stain or blemish.

III. Thou shalt elect as thy public servants in political office men of strong character, eager to conserve the best interests of thy people. And when thou hast elected such men thou shalt stand to support and encourage them, for their temptations are many and their burdens are not light.

IV. Thou shalt exalt thy public school and honor it all the days of thy life with the best of teachers, building and equipment, for the school is the cradle of the future. Thy children are here and they shall be the children of tomorrow. No training is too good for them and no preparation superfluous.

V. Thou shalt defend the health of thy home town from the death that lurks in marshes, swamps and heaps of filth. Thou shalt exterminate the fly and misquito, for they carry typhoid and malaria. The tubercle baccillus shalt drive before thee with the sun and fresh air as thy allies.

VI. Thou shalt build good roads and keep them good. For by her roads is a town known for good or ill. Eternal watchfulness shall be thy motto, that thy roads may not ravel nor thy supervisor forget thee.

VII. Thou shalt keep thy home town beautiful. The hills, the trees, the waters that Nature has given her thou shalt preserve in sacred trust. No. hovel shalt thou permit to disfigure them. Thou shalt keep thy homes and door yards clean and cheerful. Thy waters shalt thou purify that they may bring thee life and strength. The future of thy town shalt thou plan with care and diligence that thy growth be not haphazard, but full of thought and loving care, as the plans of a mother for the growth of her child.

VIII. Thou shalt honor thy community institutions. Thou shalt work together with thy neighbors with all thy heart and strength and mind. Thou shalt work together in thy organizations and clubs for the common welfare. Thy leaders shalt thou learn to obey. Thou shalt serve on committees where thou art put and not intrude on committees where thou art not put. Thus thou shalt know each other better, thy work shall prosper, and thy friendships shall multiply.

IX. Thou shalt be a good neighbor to all who live in thy home town, whether they be rich or poor. Thou shalt speak ill of none and good of many. Thou shalt be a friend to strangers and visit the sick in their affliction.

X. Thou shalt go to church for the honor of thy home town and for thine own good. Thou shalt not considerthyself too wise, too busy, too bad nor too good, to spend an hour or two on Sunday with thy neighbors in the worship of God. Thou shalt not send thy children to church. Thou shalt bring them there. Thou shalt offer thyself to thy spiritual leader for the service of God and thy community. So shall ye win many battles together.

Great Cast In "A Man's Home"

The uniform excellence of the cast in the big Selznick special, A Man's Home, is exciting comment wherever the production is being exhibited and is said to be a strong contributory factor to the success which the picture is achieving. That there are not a dozen acting characters in the picture—and only six principals whose work can be recalled—is a fact that escapes those who see the special and find little else to think about excepting the power of the story.

Harry T. Morey, Kathlyn Williams, Matt Moore, Faire Binney, Roland Bottomley and Grace Valentine are the principals. Each is a real celebrity in the amusement world and there are many things of interest which might be said of each player.

Roland Bottomley is an English actor who came to this country in 1912 and first appeared in "The Pink Lady," "The Quaker Girl," "High Jinks" and "The Laughing Husband," on the socalled legitimate stage. Following these engagements, he was engaged by the Pathe company to star in two serials, The Grip of Evil and The Neglected Wife, with Ruth Roland. Later he supported Irene Fenwick, Marguerite Clark and Mary Pickford in important screen productions.

The unusual balance of the Man's Home cast has resulted in a peculiar situation in so far as the reviews of the production are concerned. In a number of instances efforts have been made to point to one member of the cast as being the bright and shining star of the constellation, and, depending upon the viewpoint of the reviewer, practically every one of the six principals has been chosen at one time or another. Morey's work has been highly commented upon.

Faire Binney is freely said to have done the best work of her interesting career in A Man's Home. Some reviewers have picked Grace Valentine as the big star. Others think Kathlyn Williams has waited until this very late day to show the very best of her histrionic talents. Matt Moore is picked out as ideal for the part he plays and there is a general agreement that Mr. Bottomley gives a perfectly wonderful performance in the role of Jack Wilson.

The best proof of the excellence of the cast and the soundness of Vice President Myron Selznick's castine judgment is Anna Steese Richardson's openly expressed regret that her play, when given its presentation on the spoken stage, did not have half as capable people to help it to success.

RECKLESS PORT ECONOMICS

If there is to be a resurrection of the Ewell bill in the forthcoming session of the Virginia Legislature, and that bill should, per chance, become a law, the Hampton Roads ports and surrounding section (including Princess Anne County) would suffer most seriously.

If such economics were to become a part of our port regulations, the shipping interests of the entire world would be apprised of it within twenty-four hours; the commerce of Hampton Roads (through differentials in freight and marine insurance) would stump; and with loss of commerce, depression would be reflected throughout the Hampton Roads communities in depreciation of values, loss of business and revenue.

In fact, an efficient pilotage system is the horse shoe nail upon which depends the Kingdom safety—the welfare of any port of consequence. Those who understand the intimate connection between a properly conducted pilotage system and port welfare, will scarcely take issue with these statements, which, in substance, are borne out by Kent, who classes the service which the pilot renders vessels as next to that of salvage, and states that he may, in a special performance of duty, even be entitled to salvage; while the Supreme Court of the United States, in emphasizing the vital relationship between an efficient pilotage system and a port's commercial welfare, says:

"Pilot regulations are regulations of commerce. A pilot is as much a part of the commercial marine as the hull of the ship and the helm by which it is guided."

This high tribunal has declared the Virginia Pilot Law to be Constitutional and free from discrimination, and the General Assembly of Virginia in 1910 commended the Virginia pilots in the highest terms for efficiency of service and general protection of the ports.

The pilots are meeting and have always met every emergency and extended all possible aid to the ports.

TO THE RESCUE
Virginia Pilots Boarding A British Ship in Distress Off Cape Henry.

The great Port of New York once made the blunder of crippling its pilotage system, when, during that period the ship New Era arrived off the port's entrance with a big passenger list of emigrants and refused the services of the State pilots, with the result that the ship was lost—over four hundred bodies strewing the coast the next morning, these bodies (as mute testimonials to inefficiency and improper law) being buried at the site known as Asbury Park; and the General Assembly of New York lost no time in restoring their pilotage service to former conditions.

"The seamen upon the vessels that encounter the perils of the sea and of other dangerous waters; the passengers upon them; as well as the shippers and consignees of their costly cargoes of merchandise; the owners of the vessels themselves; the companies who insure the vessels and the lives and property upon them; the ports which are interested in their exits and entrances, are all deeply and intimately concerned that there shall be well designed and well administered systems of pilotage. Such systems are as necessary for navigable waters as systems of police are necessary for great crowded cities; and the public weal is as much concerned in the maintenance of pilotage systems on water as in the maintenance of police on land . . .
